

The Monroe Family YMCA is partnering with the Monroe Branch Library to bring you:

Monroe Reads to End Racism

October 14, 2017 1:00-4:00 pm

This program will take place at the Monroe Family YMCA, located at 797 Monroe Ave., next door to the Library.

For teens and adults

This is a community program to promote racial justice through book discussion and team building. We will be discussing the book All American Boys by Jason Reynolds and Brendan Kiely.

Many people want to help improve race relations but do not know how. Participants will have a mutual starting place with a story about racial conflict.

Some copies of the book are available at the Monroe Branch Library, and we will be raffling off a few copies during the program.

There will also be snacks, special guests, and other surprises.

Please contact the library for more details or to register for this program.
